Keynote Speech Topic: Perspectives on Succeeding in a Global Society

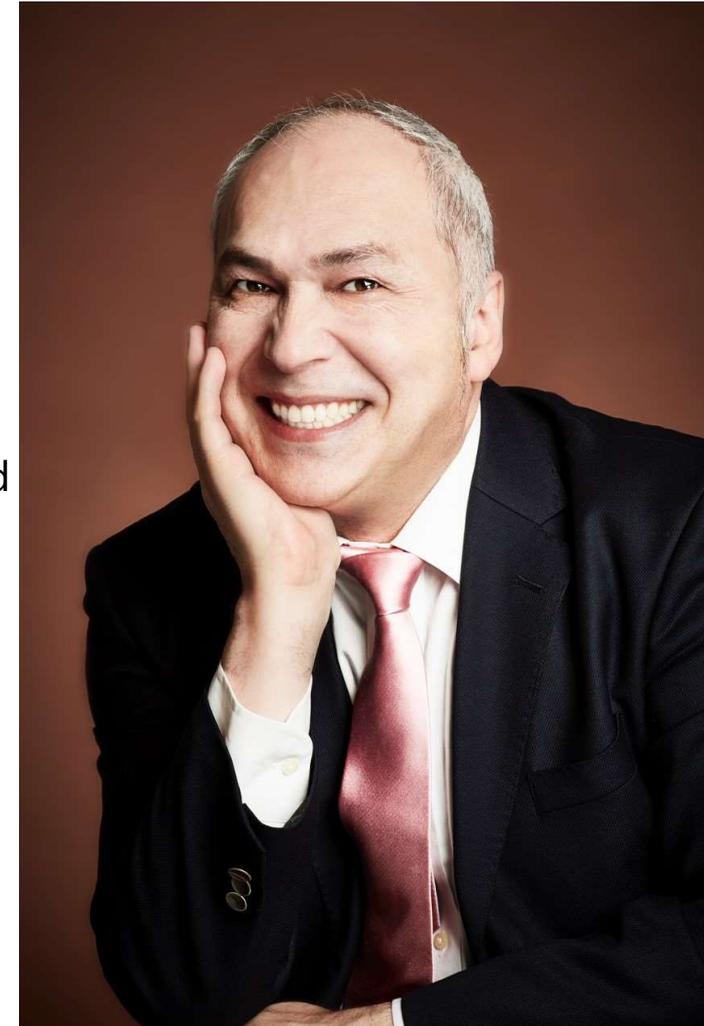

Drawing from his own experiences, Mr. Robertson discusses the importance of cultivating a broad perspective and international education. He explores cultural and value differences between Japan and other countries, highlights the mindset and adaptability needed to thrive in a global society, and emphasizes the passion to pursue one's dreams.

Main Presenter: Morley Robertson

(International Journalist/Commentator)

Educated both in Japan and the U.S., Mr. Robertson majored in Electronic Music and Animation at Harvard University, graduating in 1988. Since graduation, he has worked extensively as a writer and radio and television personality, sharing his sharp perspectives on society and culture. He has been actively involved in podcasts and online media since their early days, pursuing new forms of communication.

He also has a focus on regional revitalization and has been involved in regional development and international cultural exchange, as well as serving the local community as a policy advisor. Active in a variety of fields, he also plays historical figures as an actor. In his presentation, Mr. Robertson will discuss cross-cultural understanding and the challenges of looking to the future, providing a global perspective.

Session Topic: What We Can Do to Protect the Environment in the Future

In this session, you will consider climate change and the importance of taking concrete actions to protect our environment. As individuals, we must think about how we can solve environmental issues that closely affect us.

Presenter: Tsuyuki Shiina (Environmentalist/SHIINA organic Founder)

She was born in Yokohama in 2001, raised in Chinatown. She spent 3 years of her high school life at "Green School Bali" in Indonesia, "the most eco-friendly school in the world", and graduated. She participated in COP24 (Conference of the Parties to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change) in Poland and COP25 in Spain. She launched SHIINA organic for her younger sister who had sensitive skin. In September 2019, she enrolled in Keio University. She is currently taking a break from university to give lectures on the environment to elementary, middle, and high schools across Japan. She has given lectures to more than 30,000 people at 220 schools.

Session Topic:
A New World Opened up by Challenges

In this session, you will think about the process of overcoming challenges and through understanding that process, be able to find new possibilities from those difficulties.

Presenter: Hirotsuru Sumire (Violinist)

A violinist from Oita City, Japan, she performed with the Kyushu Symphony Orchestra at the age of 12 and made her solo debut at Carnegie Hall in New York City while still in high school. After graduating from Harvard University (B.A.) and The Juilliard School (M.A.), she started her own music consulting company in New York. Currently she is based in Japan, performing all over the world.

She is also a fixed-term associate professor at Akita International University and a visiting associate professor at Seikei University.

Session Topic: The Power of Cross-Cultural Understanding and Empathy: Social Connection in the Age of Globalization

In this session, you will consider the importance of “empathy” when interacting with people from different cultural backgrounds, as well as how we can utilize it in the future global society.

Presenter: Robert Campbell (Professor Emeritus, University of Tokyo, Scholar of Japanese Literature)

A native of New York City, he is a scholar who specializes in the literature of the Edo and Meiji periods. He is particularly known for his research on Chinese classical literature, art, and thought from the mid-Edo to Meiji periods. He holds a Ph.D. from Harvard University and has taught at several Japanese universities, contributing to international academic exchange.

With his in-depth knowledge of Japanese literature and culture, he has lectured and written extensively, serving as a bridge between Japan and other countries in cultural exchange. He has appeared on television and radio programs, continuing to communicate literature and culture to a broad audience through his friendly approach. He also stresses the importance of multicultural coexistence and cross-cultural understanding and promotes dialogue from a global perspective.
